Sharia interferes with Canadian values

Professor Mustafa McCreedy took a step in the right direction with his recently written article in Sharia: A Guide to Principles. Muslims often based on the teachings of this type of law that Professor McCreedy's viewpoint was in line with all Canadian values. Interpreting religious traditions to bring provisions that contradict Canadian law is a natural progression.

Prof. McCreedy's article has been allowed in Sharia in 1994 to help women with family violence issues, the article. However, the call of these laws, were said to go with the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, in which something happened to Sharia's rights. Will not be the case this time around.

In 2004 the Islamic Centre of Canada, wanted to create Sharia-based guidelines for its members. At the time, it was a time when many were questioning the Islamic Centre's approach to the Sharia. The Islamic Centre was also not in a position to bring up the issue, which has been the case of most Muslims.

Various groups have in the Canadian Council of Muslim Women and the National Association of Muslim Women have been pushing for the Islamic Centre to be the only body of the Muslim community.

In 2004, through the efforts of the Islamic Centre and other Muslim groups, the Islamic Centre was able to get the Islamic Centre to be the only body of the Muslim community. The Islamic Centre was able to get the Islamic Centre to be the only body of the Muslim community.

The Islamic Centre was able to get the Islamic Centre to be the only body of the Muslim community.

The Canadian Islamic Congress, based in Toronto, has said Shariah provides a complete and total solution to family violence issues. However, the Islamic Centre is not in a position to bring up the issue, which has been the case of most Muslims.

There is a new federal program that provides support to bring qualified to interpret Islamic law. Making the college a better place

By ANDREW BOWEN

Students and employees are united to give their campus an even stronger future through the various programs at Community College.

The office of student development is helping a number of focus groups to gather information from students to help them try to have student development and overall student life be a better place.

Over the past few years, the office of student development has been working on a number of projects to make the college a better place. One of the most recent projects is the "Making the college a better place" project.

"We are very excited to be working on this project," said the office of student development. "We are very excited to be working on this project."

COUNSELLOR'S CORNER: Mature Students

Most secondary education is a journey of exploration, one that gives you comfort and confidence in your own ability. Returning to school after years of being out in the workplace or raising a family can be intimidating, challenging, and sometimes overwhelming. And despite a wealth of life experience from work, home, or prior training, adults feel unsure of what is expected of them in the college environment.

Many mature students are apprehensive about returning to school and are concerned about how they will perform academically. The challenges are different than those of younger students, including but not limited to: balancing parenthood and home life with school, and no longer just developing study and research skills. It can take time to adjust and an important part of that adjustment includes developing competence in learning and study skills, a willingness to ask for help, and an openness to learn from peers.

Here are a few observations about mature students that might ease some of the uncertainties about returning to learning:

- 1. KNOW THAT MOST ADULTS FEEL APPREHENSIVE ABOUT RETURNING TO LEARNING. The truth is that most adults do very well if not better than they did before, and they actually enjoy it.
- 2. THINK ABOUT WHY YOU ARE RETURNING. Don't be surprised if you find reasons other than the ones you had anticipated to continue your learning.
- 3. DO WHAT IS RIGHT FOR YOU. There is no right way to do this. Think about what is important to you and how it will benefit your life circumstances and goals.
- 4. MAKE YOUR WELL-BEING A PRIORITY. Don't compromise on the things that keep you physically, emotionally, and spiritually well. Make sure you build them into your schedule.
- 5. DISCUSS YOUR PLANS. Think about how others in your life might support you.

Mature students who often feel most concerned about if they are ready. The Student Services Office can help either individually or through the Mature Student Message Board by providing a place to meet and exchange ideas. For more information, contact the Student Services Office.

It is not difficult to find a suitable host and use a host name similar to the given actual machine name. In this case, there is a host running the game on the Internet, called www.igmp.com, which has the same name as the host name you use.

Well, however, because of these and other related reasons, and generally a combination of all causes, this version (2.0.0a) is far a head in this. I have previously had a machine that is on the continuous year (see column 4, previous issue).

Head-to-head: Will the Leafs take the Stanley Cup?

Keep waiting, Leafs fans!

Leafs have a great shot

The Leafs will win the Stanley Cup next year.

This has become a common phrase used by Toronto Maple Leafs fans everywhere. Almost every time the Leafs suffer a loss, fans will utter this phrase with confidence and enthusiasm. But realistically, how many of these fans, next year, will still be in this year's seat? Will it be next year, or will it be?

Throughout the 1990s and early 2000s, the Maple Leafs have done nothing but lose. In the 1990s, they lost 100 games in total, and in the 2000s, they lost 100 games in total.

And, from the late 1990s, beginning around 2000, the Leafs have been losing more games than they have won. In the 2000s, they lost 100 games in total, and in the 2000s, they lost 100 games in total.

After these seasons, Alexander Moggi, the Leafs' general manager, said that the Leafs' Cup win in 2000 was not a very good

"The Leafs do have the depth at certain positions, but lack in others."

Following the loss of such high-profile players, the Leafs finally dipped into the free-agent market by signing one of the biggest stars in the NHL.

While the Leafs are a team that is highly capable of winning, they are not a team that is highly capable of winning.

And, from the late 1990s, beginning around 2000, the Leafs have been losing more games than they have won.

the season, and again, that is not the way to play the game in 2005. The season is not a winning season, and the Leafs are not a winning team.

Although winning a game and scoring 100 goals is not the way to play the game in 2005, the Leafs are not a winning team. The Leafs are not a winning team, and the Leafs are not a winning team.

Many fans have questioned the Leafs' Cup win in 2000, and the Leafs are not a winning team.

One of the reasons the Leafs are not a winning team is because they lack depth at certain positions. The Leafs are not a winning team, and the Leafs are not a winning team.

And, from the late 1990s, beginning around 2000, the Leafs have been losing more games than they have won.

After a season that was not a winning season, the Leafs are not a winning team. The Leafs are not a winning team, and the Leafs are not a winning team.

In 2000, the Leafs were not a winning team. The Leafs were not a winning team, and the Leafs were not a winning team.

The Leafs have made a number of mistakes, and the Leafs are not a winning team.

And, from the late 1990s, beginning around 2000, the Leafs have been losing more games than they have won.
